

David Charles Brown

May 12, 1950 - March 18, 2025

David Charles Brown (Charles), 74, of Halifax passed away on March 18, 2025. He was born in Montreal on May 12, 1950 to the late Russell Charles Brown and Virginia Brown née Prince. He was predeceased by his only sibling, Marilyn Bensley and is survived and mourned by his loving wife of 44 years, Elizabeth Helen Burke and four-footed “daughter”, Luka.

Charles was a graduate of Dalhousie University, Halifax and Carleton University, Ottawa. As a Marine Geologist he travelled the world experiencing different cultures, meeting and becoming friends with many interesting people. When not working abroad he partnered in his wife’s antiques business and loved the thrill of the hunt for new “treasures”.

He was a talented amateur artist and passionate about art, antiques and history. He took great pleasure in working on the house and grounds of their Victorian home. They enjoyed their travels around the Maritimes, across Canada and much of the US and Ireland. Charles was frequently seen at dog shows as he and his wife presented their succession of beloved, beautiful Dobermans.

He was a quiet, private man, always the gentleman and a great conversationalist with a wicked sense of humour.

At his request there will be no service.

Donations to the Nature Conservancy of Canada, www.natureconservancy.ca may be made in his memory.

Tribute Wall

DB

“ I recently learned of Charlie’s passing last year. I knew him when we were both students in university back in the early 70’s. I am so glad that he had a rich and fulfilling personal and professional life. He was a special human being!

Diane Buffett - April 15 at 07:25 PM

GB

I knew Charlie when he was a student at KCS then while he attended Dalhousie. He was a great open field tackler while playing Rugby at Kings and a great person to hang around with. It sounds like he had a very fulfilling life. I often wondered where life had taken him and am saddened to learn through his obituary. May you rest in peace CB. Until we meet again GB

Gary Boyd - May 21 at 08:15 PM