“ Much of my time with Judy was spent driving her around. It didn't matter where, as long as we were out and about. Once we took an overnight trip to Shelbourne to visit Keri, Hope, and Sophie. Another jaunt was a picnic near water which turned into a quiet picnic in a lovely, flat, spacious cemetery as there are no picnic sites on the route to Peggy's Cove. We had a great laugh about that trip. She often wanted to have lunch out so we dined at various restaurants too.

One Christmas season I pressed her into hosting a small tea party. With reservations, she agreed and ended up having a wonderful time.

She loved her beautiful cat Simon whom she called Si-Si. She was generous with his treats. He also loved her and kept close tabs on her.

At times, when we stayed in, we would play cribbage. She would tap her forefinger on the table while telling me to hurry, as she recounted that her grandfather would do the same when she and her mom played with him. It was nice to hear of her memory.

Judy enjoyed the noise and commotion of my home when I hosted Christmas and New Years dinners. She was always welcome. I will miss her. Rest in peace, Judy.
